The new contract has a one-year base period of performance and four one-year options.

Rockville, MD– CNSI today announced that it has been awarded a GSA Blanket Purchase Agreement by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). CNSI will provide scientific, engineering and technical services in support of the Office of Information Technology (OIT), who has overall management responsibility for the Commission's information technology (IT) program. The new contract has a one-year base period of performance and four one-year options. Established in 1934, the SEC enforces federal securities laws and regulates the securities industry to protect investors, the nation's stock and options exchanges, and maintain fair, orderly and efficient markets. Under the contract, CNSI and other contractors will have a competitive opportunity to provide IT services as required in areas including software development, enhancement and support services.

Contractors may also assist with process management, configuration management, quality assurance, system administration, software testing and documentation, and maintenance services to support web-enabled and client-server applications. "The win is a further example of the successful partnership between CNSI and the federal government in providing excellence in IT services contracting, " said Vijay Mishra, Vice President of Federal Programs, CNSI. "We are pleased to develop what we hope will be a longstanding relationship with the SEC and look forward to becoming a trusted and experienced IT partner that helps them achieve their mission and business objectives."
